Renee Zellweger knows 'The Thing About Pam' in NBC limited series

"The Thing About Pam"
premieres Tuesday on NBC.

Renee Zellweger has immersed herself in roles many times, but even she admits her latest one takes that to a new extent.

The two-time Oscar winner (for "Cold Mountain" and "Judy") makes an exceedingly rare television appearance in NBC's limited series "The Thing About Pam," a true-crime story premiering Tuesday, March 8. Based on a case that inspired multiple "Dateline NBC" episodes and a popular podcast, the tale – which strikes a balance between hard fact and offbeat whimsy – also stars Glenn Fleshler ("Billions") as a man convicted of killing his wife (Katy Mixon, "Mike & Molly"), though he maintained his innocence and was eventually exonerated.

However, also involved was a friend of the victim, quirky Pam Hupp (Zellweger). The nature of the connection between the two women became of great interest to investigators and the two attorneys (played by Josh Duhamel and Judy Greer) who were on opposing sides of the husband's legal situation.

Almost all of Zellweger's previous TV work came before her star-making turn in "Jerry Maguire." She says that in returning to the medium, "I enjoyed it a lot. I think it suits me. I like the pace. I love that it's quick, and you have to think fast on your feet ... not so different from making independent films. You've got to make the most of the little bit of time that you have."

Still, for Zellweger, "The Thing About Pam" involved a makeup and prosthetics job that started at four hours daily. (It eventually was whittled down to just over half of that.) "That's part of your tool kit that makes it easier to achieve what it is that you're trying to do," Zellweger reasons, "in terms of telling someone else's story. And the further you are away from yourself, the safer you feel to explore."

"The Thing About Pam" marks a collaboration of somewhat unlikely partners, NBC News Studios and Blumhouse, the production company known for low-budget, high-profit horror films. "When a two-time Oscar winner calls and says, 'I'm obsessed with this story, and I want to play Pam, and I want to produce' ... I mean, you say, 'Yes, yes, yes and yes,'" muses Blumhouse chief Chris McCumber. "Our job, at that point, is to provide Renee and the rest of the cast with all the tools that they need to embody these characters."

Zellweger notes, "I binged the podcast, actually, when I was driving up and down (California's) 5 Freeway, going to take my dog to get his hip replaced up in San Francisco. And I couldn't believe it. It was just an experience of escalating absurdities, and it felt like it would be something really interesting to explore further."

tonight's picks

Kandi Burruss-Tucker

8 p.m. on NBC/WSTM NBC/WHEC
The Courtship

If someone produced a period adaptation of "The Bachelor-ette," it might look something like this reality dating series, which was developed under the working title "Pride & Prejudice: An Experiment in Romance." This unconventional social experiment revolves around a heroine looking to find her dream duke, so she is transported to a Regency-style English setting, where a series of hopeful male suitors pay court to her in a castle. That courtship involves carriage rides, archery lessons and communicating via handwritten letters.

9 p.m. on BRAVO
Kandi & The Gang

At Kandi Burruss-Tucker's OLG restaurant in Atlanta, the dishes never disappoint and neither does the drama. This new reality series follows Kandi ("The Real Housewives of Atlanta"), her husband Todd and the "Old Lady Gang" behind the scenes at their famed hot spot, where they dish up delicious soul food that has customers lining up, served by the colorful cast of characters who work there.

After weathering more than a decade of hurricane seasons, a family is tired of having to evacuate from their small rental every year when a storm threatens. Happily, hosts Brian and Mika Kleinschmidt are raring to get them to safer ground, but dealing with the couple's opposing style requests is definitely going to keep Mika on her toes in the new episode "Hurricane Safe Haven."

NCIS

During an investigation into what caused the death of a reservist Navy SEAL surgeon, the team is forced to bring in Kayla Vance (guest star Naomi Grace) — daughter of NCIS Director Leon Vance (Rocky Carroll) — to assist with a highly dangerous mission in the new episode "First Steps." Antonio Jaramillo, Ronald Auguste and Galadriel Stineman also guest star; David McCallum appears in his recurring role as Dr. "Ducky" Mallard. Sean Murray and Wilmer Valderrama also star.

The Endgame

In a new episode called "Bury the Lede," after the life of a hostage is threatened, Elena (Morena Baccarin) enlists the help of a popular news anchor with a reputation for being "America's most trusted man" to negotiate her safe release. Ryan Michelle Bathe also stars.

CBS/WROC
NCIS: Hawai'i

A long-overdue father-daughter day on the water for Jesse and Gracie (Noah Mills, Chloe Csenbery) is rudely interrupted when a gang of pirates suddenly appears and seizes their yacht, making hostages of all the passengers and assaulting Jesse, in the new episode "Pirates."

Making mirth in the military

"The Phil Silvers Show"

Television has a long and distinguished history of mining life in the military for laughs.

One of the earliest examples of the military comedy was "The Phil Silvers Show." Airing on CBS from 1955 to 1959, this satire of life in the service followed the machinations of Master Sgt. Ernie Bilko (played by Silvers), a loud, brash con artist who could talk his way out of any situation and gamble with the best of them, at the fictional Fort Baxter in Kansas.

Much of the comedy derived from the uber-resourceful Bilko's various money-making schemes and ability to outsmart his commanding officer, Col. Hall (Paul Ford). His attitude filtered down to the most of the men in his platoon, who also circumvented regulations and ran roughshod over the others.

The series served as a launching pad for talent who would go on to prolific comedy careers, including character actor Harvey Lembeck, Allan Melvin ("Archie Bunker's Place") and Joe E. Ross ("Car 54, Where Are You?").

Viewers can catch "The Phil Silvers Show" late nights on Decades.

"McHale's Navy" (Airs daily on Antenna):

Another example of the con artist soldier is the title character of this World War II-set 1962-66 ABC comedy, which cast Academy Award winner Ernest Borgnine as Lt. Cdr. Quinton McHale, who regularly flaunted regulations much to the joy of his men on their South Pacific PT boat but to the dismay of his immediate superior, Capt. Binghamton (Joe Flynn). Tim Conway also began his long and distinguished comedy career here as Ensign Parker.

"F Troop" (Streams on Prime Video, Apple TV):

Set in the post-Civil War American West, this 1965-67 ABC sitcom starred Ken Berry as Capt. Wilton Parmenter, the bumbling commanding officer at Fort Courage. In addition to the supporting cast of Forrest Tucker, Larry Storch and Melody Patterson, the show featured appearances by A-list comedic talent of the day, including Don Rickles, Milton Berle and Paul Lynde. And TV trivia mavens will note that the local tribe the Hekawis (a play on "Where the heck are we?") originally had a more salacious name that began with the letter F, but network censors figured out the reference and had it changed.

"The Deer Hunter"

"Kramer vs. Kramer"

"Sophie's Choice"

BEST MERYL STREEP MOVIES

"The Deer Hunter" (1978) In her first Oscar-nominated performance, Streep plays a steel-town resident linked to several men who leave to fight in the Vietnam War.

"Kramer vs. Kramer" (1979) Streep earned a supporting Oscar as a quietly desperate wife and mother gone AWOL.

"The French Lieutenant's Woman" (1981) Giving her knack for playing complex roles free rein, Streep is superb as an actress involved in a passionate affair, as is the 19th-century character she's portraying.

"Sophie's Choice" (1982) The choice is wrenching for the concentration-camp survivor played by Streep in her best-actress Oscar winner.

"Silkwood" (1983) Streep's knack for making ordinary people seem extraordinary is evident in her portrayal of the plutonium plant worker.

"Out of Africa" (1985) Letting her show off her chameleon-like skills, the part of author Karen Blixen is ideally suited to Streep.

"Heartburn" (1986) Reteamed with "Silkwood" director Mike Nichols, Streep plays a variation on author-filmmaker Nora Ephron in depicting romance, marriage and resulting woes.

"A Cry in the Dark" (1988) Did she or didn't she? Streep's skilled work in this true drama leaves the question of whether her character – or a dingo – was responsible for her daughter's death in Australia.

"Postcards From the Edge" (1990) Carrie Fisher's semi-autobiographical novel yields the tale of the strained relationship between daughter-and-mother celebrities, played by Streep and Shirley MacLaine.

"The Bridges of Madison County" (1995) Streep and director and co-star Clint Eastwood prove an ideal match in the adaptation of Robert James Waller's melancholy love story.

"One True Thing" (1998) Anna Quindlen's novel supplies strong roles for Streep as a cancer patient and Renee Zellweger as the daughter who cares for her.

"The Hours" (2002) In the saga of three women of different times who share a common thread, Streep is magnificent as a modern book editor staging a party for an AIDS-stricken poet (Ed Harris).

"The Devil Wears Prada" (2006) For a textbook example of how to do a lot with a little, witness Streep's purposely minimal emoting as an imperious fashion magazine editor.

"Mamma Mia!" (2008) Yes, she sings, too! While Adele has nothing to worry about, Streep demonstrates she can carry classic ABBA tunes.

"Julie & Julia" (2009) Streep flawlessly channels chef Julia Child, effectively showing the woman behind the icon in the earliest phases of the cooking star's international fame.

"It's Complicated" (2009) A winningly accessible Streep is terrific as a mom trying to juggle her insatiably amorous ex-husband (Alec Baldwin) and a nice-guy architect (Steve Martin).

"The Iron Lady" (2011) Matching Streep to the role of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was a cinch to earn the actress her third Oscar. Turner Classic Movies shows the film Sunday, March 6.

American Auto

This new sitcom from "Superstore" creator Justin Spitzer drew strong praise from critics, but is still trying to find the audience it deserves. With hopes for a second season still up in the air, this wickedly funny workplace comedy wraps its freshman season with "Profile," which finds the Payne Motors team scrambling to do pre-emptive damage control as their gaffe-prone boss, Katherine (Ana Gasteyer), films a segment for a TV newsmagazine.

FBI: Most Wanted

Julian McMahon bids farewell to the criminal procedural he has led for three seasons with his last appearance as Supervisory Special Agent Jess LaCroix in the new episode "Shattered," which finds Jess and his team trying to save a woman fleeing an abusive relationship. Her ex-boyfriend didn't take that decision very well, embarking on a murderous spree as he pursues his fugitive lover. McMahon startled fans of this series in January with his announcement to leave the show to pursue other opportunities.

The Thing About Pam

Renée Zellweger makes her network television debut in the title role of this new limited series, on which she also serves as an executive producer. The story chronicles the true-crime saga of Betsy Faria's (Katy Mixon, "American Housewife") brutal 2011 murder, a crime for which her husband, Russ (Glenn Fleshler), initially was convicted. That conviction eventually was overturned, however, as a chain of events exposed a diabolical scheme involving a criminal, Pam Hupp (Zellweger). Josh Duhamel, Judy Greer and Sean Bridgers also star.

This superhero action hit returns from hiatus on a new night to continue its season, which picks things up pretty much where they left off, as Bart and Nora (guest stars Jordan Fisher and Jessica Parker Kennedy) return from their parents' vow-renewal ceremony. Unfortunately, they quickly discover things are not exactly as they left them, so they race to repair any fissures in the timeline before chaos ensues in the new "Impulsive Excessive Disorder."

The Masked Singer

This game show, in which panelists try to guess the identity of elaborately masked performers, recently found itself at the center of some controversy after a polarizing political figure reportedly was among this season's first contestants to be unmasked. Otherwise, though, all signs suggest that Season 7, which premieres tonight, will offer its viewers the same family-friendly experience that keeps them tuning in. Host Nick Cannon welcomes back judges Ken Jeong, Jenny McCarthy Wahlberg, Nicole Scherzinger and Robin Thicke.

In this final hour, both Joes — Steven McBee and Kurt Sowers — must select their final lady and bid farewell to the other contenders. Then, in the moment of truth, they reveal the truth about how fiscally formidable each of them is, which in turn may determine whether true love outweighs their bank accounts. Martin Andrew also appears as The Butler.

Water levels are rising quickly in the new episode "Battle of Black Lagoon," forcing Leron and Porkchop to race the swiftly incoming tide. Elsewhere, Willie goes after his old foe, nicknamed Black Lagoon, while Ronnie and Ashley use their airboat to reach new honey holes. Meanwhile, Joey and Zak struggle through a heavily wasp-infested canal.

Pivoting

This freshman sitcom about three female friends further bonded by the death of a fourth wraps up the season with a finale called "Coleen in a Box," a reference to the dearly departed, whose birthday is approaching. In honor of that occasion, Amy, Sarah and Jodie (Eliza Coupe, Maggie Q, Ginnifer Goodwin) decide to table their individual personal issues to enjoy a girls' night out — with the late Coleen's cremated remains along for the ride. Tommy Dewey and JT Neal also star.

Lucy Barrett

8 p.m. on CW/WSTM2 Charmed

As they struggle to adjust to life without their sister Macy, Mel (Melonie Diaz) finds welcome distraction in trying new flings at the magical hotspot the Blue Camellia Bar, while Maggie (Sarah Jeffery) takes on more than her share of demon hunting in the Season 4 premiere "Not That Girl." Elsewhere, Harry (Rupert Evans) wrestle with grief over his lost love, while Jordan (Jordan Donica) tests his newfound powers by teaming up with Maggie. Meanwhile, a young woman in Philadelphia (Lucy Barrett) is about to confront her new destiny.

8 p.m. on CBS/WTVH CBS/WROC Undercover Boss

Gary Findley, the head of Restoration 1, is a Texan who proudly describes himself as a "redneck CEO," so he may not have a hard time passing as part of the mainstream personnel of the company as he goes undercover to make sure there are no hidden flaws in the corporate playbook that could cause problems for the franchisees. Being certain of that is especially important with a company like Restoration 1, which involves biohazard remediation.

Rescuing eateries gets competitive on 'Restaurant Rivals: Irvine vs. Taffer'

Robert Irvine and Jon Taffer share a love of rescuing hospitality businesses. They just do it from differing angles.

While Chef Irvine ("Restaurant: Impossible") approaches saving restaurants from the culinary perspective, believing the food is what will draw in customers, Taffer ("Bar Rescue") takes the businessman's point of view, arguing the overall dining experience is what the diner is after. Now their guiding principles will be put to the test in a new competition series just premiered on discovery+.

In the three hourlong episodes of "Restaurant Rivals: Irvine vs. Taffer," the two men each apply their acumen to a struggling family-owned Southern California eatery. Some may be neighbors, some may be in the same town but all will be made over within the space of 24 hours, getting new menus and improvements to restaurant and staff.

In the end, the two businesses go head-to-head in a dining service that will determine the winner, which is based on food quality, atmosphere and service.

For Taffer, who once owned a restaurant music consulting business, the idea was right up his alley.

"Through my work, I'd proven that I could increase table turns through music," he says. "I can make you chew faster through music. I could stimulate conversation through music. So I used these environmental factors all the time in my concept creations.

"So it's interesting," he continues. "I sort of look at it from the outside in, Robert looks at it from the inside out. I've got to add, I don't have any disrespect for his process or the way he goes about it. That's what makes this exciting for me, is I have complete respect for him and his process."

The problems the two men faced were pretty typical – food quality, poorly trained staff, ownership issues, attitude problems and red ink. Some restaurants were in better positions financially than others but many weren't far from closing.

In addition to offering advice, Taffer and Irvine took on the role of therapist for the owners, because as Taffer says, "You can't fix a restaurant without fixing the owner."

And while there is no grand prize per se, there are regional bragging rights to be won as well as the intrinsic reward of a business saved.

"There was an interesting dynamic ... and that was the competitive nature of it," Taffer explains. "They not only wanted to make their restaurants better, they wanted to win. My guys wanted to beat Irvine. I mean, we wanted to beat him bad, every one of my restaurant teams, and I know the same happened on Robert's side as well."

"So interestingly, I think the competitive nature of the show added to the motivation level of the owners and sort of made them more successful in their execution."
